THE SOCIALISTS.

The gang of lazy, drunken louts who are now clamoring Communism and Socialism in Chicago ought all to be smashing rock in the Joliet Penitentiary. They are trying to identify themselves with the Labor movement and calling for eight hours as a day's work. These vermin ridden, gin soaked, dirt incrustated bums would not work an hour a day at ten dollars an hour if they could congregate in some low resort and blather about their rights.

They are simply the scum of the criminal element of their own country and ought never to be permitted to land in America. They attempt to identify themselves with the Labor movement when they are no part of it whatever, and the sober, industrious, working men repudiate this miserable whelp-aze from the Socialists' kennel.

There is but one class of men in America who deserve to be ranked with them, and this is the class of people who insist that they are unable to distinguish the difference between the followers of Herr Most and Powderly. There are men blinded by coin and prejudice, who keep up the cry that a lot of knaves and lunatics who parade the streets clamoring for the heads of capitalists, and honest, well-meaning workingmen, demanding arbitration to settle long endured wrongs, present one and the same picture.

The editors who in the interest of corporations write such stuff deserves to be classed with the idiots and fanatics who are just now crowding to hear Herr Most's crazy harangues in Chicago.

The sensation of the day in New York society is Mrs. James Potter Brown's determination not to appear in public again. She never has played except for charity, and has taken umbrage at the talk excited by her recitation of "Ostler Joe." She has for a long time been an amateur actress and very much interested in stage performances. As an entertainer she has no superior, and has been known to preside over a company at breakfast, play in the Russian Honeymoon at a matinee for some charitable purpose and lead the german in the evening. She got along very well until she went to Washington, and her experience there has disgusted her with the hypocrisy of social life. The storm of criticism which her recitation of "Ostler Joe" aroused, has worked such a change in her ambitions that she will not only go on the stage, but will appear no more in public performances either as an actress or recitationist.

Among the characteristic features of the May number of the Overland monthly are: Strong Papers on Social, Industrial, Historical and Economic Subjects; Short Stories of Character and Adventure—New Writers with something to say; Out Door Studies, breezy and picturesque, Pioneer Reminiscences and Tales of the Mining Camps; Serial Stories of California and Mexico, during the current year; The Best Thought of the Literary and Political of the Far West.

The Butte Free Press thus sizes down the Renoites:

Barrels of printer's ink are being aimlessly wasted in Reno, Nevada, in the discussion over base ball playing on Sundays, and still the question is as far from settlement as ever. When the great moralists of Nevada get their heads together they will always do something, and they will probably settle the dispute by putting away the bat and ball and devoting their Sunday time to playing against faro bank.

Some of the mormons in Southern Utah have Indian women for wives, claiming that they are more virtuous than the white women in that country. The Pioche Record says they are called Lamaites, because they would stand laming better than the white women—never retaliating by throwing a chunk of wood at the head of the family.

George E. Lask, agent for Miss Celia Alsberg has done very effective work in this city as an advance agent. He is a brother of Harry Lask the famous pianist.
